I. EXETER EXCHANGE (1676 - 1829)

Our address marked a vibrant district of business, retail and entertainment in Georgian Britain. Exeter Exchange was built in 1676 and rose to prominence in the 18th century for its famous collection of exotic animals, including monkeys and big cats.

The Exeter 'Change Menagerie was a popular visitor attraction amongst 18th and 19th-century Londoners, including famous poets and writers. When the building was demolished in 1829, the animals were moved to the new London Zoo in Regent's Park.

Pedestrians browsing the Menagerie c.1820

One day, a daring baboon managed to break out of its cage in the menagerie. The escape caused havoc amongst the animals in its wake, with the others very nearly escaping too! This cocktail honours the infamous 'Escaped Baboon' incident.

THE ESCAPED BABOON - £16

Kraken Spiced Rum, Banana Syrup, Pineapple & Ginger Shrub, Lime, Pineapple Juice and Banana Chips

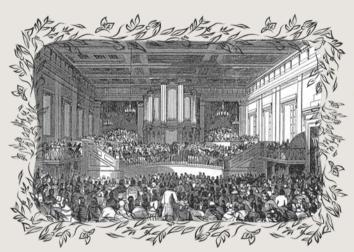

II. EXETER HALL (1831 - 1907)

Our location transformed again in the early 19th-century to become a gathering place of change and progression known as 'Exeter Hall'. London was the most populous city in the world, and information had to be announced in large gathering spaces.

The Freemasons' Hall could only fit 1,600 people, and thus, it was decided by a consortium that it was time to build a larger venue. The venue hosted political meetings, live musical concerts, speeches and educational workshops until it was closed in 1907.

Exeter Hall c. 1840s

A meeting at Exeter Hall c. 1840s

Exeter Hall was the chosen venue to host the inaugural meeting of the Society for the Abolition of Slavery. Here the first steps towards worldwide abolition were undertaken. This cocktail, 'The Last Word', stands as a testament to London's unwavering commitment to change and progression for a better future.

THE LAST WORD - £16

Mezcal, Green Chartreuse and Maraschino Cherry

III. STRAND PALACE HOTEL (1909 - 2019)

STRAND PALACE (2019 - PRESENT)

The hotel was built in 1909 after Exeter Hall to cater to the growing demand for accommodation, particularly for visitors to the nearby theatre district and London attractions.

There was an adjoining hotel next door, named the Haxell's Hotel which was then acquired in order to expand and modernise Strand Palace with the vision to make it more grand.

After its extensive Art Deco renovation in the early 1930s, the hotel boasted 980 bedrooms and a single room with breakfast cost five shillings and a six pence, which is around 27p today.

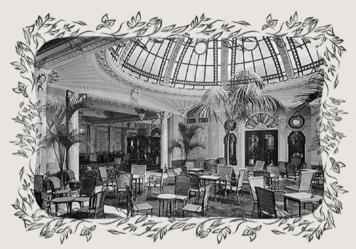

The Strand Palace reserve trench during World War I

During World War I, between 1914 and 1921, the hotel hosted a number of American soldiers. Many of them kept their room keys in hope of returning to their home away from home.

To this day, our hotel keys are still being found across beaches of Europe and you can find these keys framed in the Haxells restaurant, with others donated to the V&A Museum.

THE LOST KEYS - £15 Vodka, Yuzu, Dry Martini and Italicus

A view of the 'Winter Garden Restaurant' c. 1909

The hotel featured a restaurant named 'The Winter Garden Restaurant' that could seat over 500 guests. It was decorated by a large glass sky dome, with lots of natural light. Guests loved the floral arrangements including lavender on the tables.

This mocktail was inspired by the 'Winter Garden Restaurant' that offered a unique, al fresco dining experience encapsulated by years of British history.

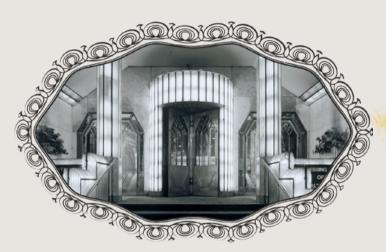

THE WINTER GARDEN - £12

Lavender Syrup, Seedlip Spiced and Rhubarb Lemonade

Add a shot of house spirit - £4

The Art Deco Lobby c. 1920s

Oliver Bernard was the British architect who created our iconic Art Deco design in the 1930s. The entrance to the hotel showcased the breathtaking art deco revolving doors that were eventually purchased by the V&A Museum. As an homage to his legacy, we are proud to present 'The Oliver Bernard.'

THE OLIVER BERNARD - £15

Dead Man Coconut Rum, Wray & Nephew Rum, Pineapple & Ginger Shrub, Pineapple Juice, Lime Juice and Coconut Syrup

A glimpse of our staff c. 1926

In the era of coal boilers, our hotel operated with two 12-hour shifts. Legend has it that a Father and Son once worked opposite shifts, only sharing 30 minutes each day together. In tribute to their dedication and hard work, we present 'Father & Son.'

Our First Restaurant c. 1910s

When hard times fell in the 20th-century, some of our guests could not afford to dine with us - and the hotel accepted ration cards as payment for food at our restaurant, as well as air raid shelters provided for all guests in the basement vaults.

Community, charity and sustainability remain at the heart of our ethos at Strand Palace. This mocktail serves as a reminder of this legacy.

THE RATION CARD - £12

Everleaf Forest, Seedlip Spiced, Macadamia Nut Syrup, Pineapple & Ginger Shrub, Pineapple Juice and Lime Juice Add a shot of house spirit - £4

Room 166 c. 1910s

In February of 1946, Strand Palace staff were alerted by screams and forced entry into a room where a man named Neville Heath was stood over a young woman named Pauline Brees. Heath was known to seduce his victims with money and tales of wartime.

A woman named Margery Gardner was murdered in June and during the investigation, staff at Strand Palace were asked to identify the body and mistakenly identified it as Pauline Brees.

THE MISSING EVIDENCE - £16

Ciroc Apple Vodka, Ciroc Vodka, Raspberry Syrup, Elderflower Cordial and Cranberry Juice

Our ensuite extension c. 1970s

In 1958, our hotel was among the first in London to add en-suite bathrooms, eliminating the need for shared facilities on each floor. This meant that our guests could freshen up in the comfort of their own privacy which added a touch of luxury to their stay.

SIGNATURE DRINK

THE POWDER ROOM - £17

Whitley Neil Parma Violet, Rose Shrub, Everleaf Mountain, Jasmine Syrup and Rhubarb Lemonade

The Oil Burner c. 1958s

With the introduction of new en-suite bathrooms in the hotel in 1958, new oil-fired boilers were installed to cope with the increased demand for hot water. The hotel was starting to invest in modernising and upgrading its facilities with electronic cash registers also being rolled out at the same time.

THE OIL BURNER - £15

Monkey Shoulders Whiskey, Bulleit Bourbon, Lime Juice, Sugar Syrup and Crème De Mure

The wedding processions pass the hotel c. 1980s

On the day of the Royal Wedding of Prince Charles and Lady Diana, the procession parade marched past Strand Palace, marking a momentous occasion for the guests and staff. The hotel provided a viewing gallery where guests watched the procession and raised a toast to the royal newlyweds.

THE VIEWING GALLERY- £12

Everleaf Mountain, Seedlip Spiced, Monin Raspberry Syrup, Cranberry Juice, Elderflower Cordial and Lime Juice Add a shot of house spirit - £4

Billiard's Room c. 1940

Strand Palace has played host over the years to cultural luminaries like Charlie Chaplin, Vivien Leigh and valiant American war veterans. Before going to a show in the West End, it was known to be a pre-show tradition to enjoy a drink at Gin Palace. While many opted for coffee, some added a little kick of whisky for Dutch courage if they were performing on stage.

Construction of the Strand Palace Hotel c. 1920s

Strand Palace is a momentous gem of historical architecture, operating under the reign of six monarchs and two World Wars. The hotel continues to be the heart of London, dedicated to its guests, charity, sustainability and innovation. This cocktail celebrates Strand Palace's rich history and its transformation from past, present and future.
