Opened in London in 1977 by New York restaurateur Joe Allen and business partner Richard Polo “Joe’s” as we are affectionately known quickly became the place for American and British stage performers to hang out. It remains the first port of call for cast and crew given a break from their shows.

The restaurant quickly became a home from home for so many stars – from Elizabeth Taylor to Rock Hudson, Joan Collins to Kenneth Williams through music idols like the Sex Pistols, Brian May and Amy Winehouse. Joe’s maintained its discreet appeal by never telling any secrets even becoming a haven for royalty hiding from paparazzi. 2017 bought a change of address as we carefully recreated the look and feel of the restaurant so many held dear, bringing everything from bricks to posters, light fixtures to bar fittings.

We’re proud the heart and soul of Joe’s made the move too – from our dear regulars to new customers chancing upon us.

Welcome all, welcome to Joe’s!
